But organisations have become afraid to apply this law. It allows for single-sex associations and sports. Access to single-sex services such as rape-crisis centres and women's refuges. It also allows service providers to offer single-sex education, employment and service provision. But it is often misunderstood, and sometimes misused.

Single-sex services

Schools are a microcosm of society, and they shape the next generation. Yet many schools promote the idea that children can be “born in the wrong body”. Schools are socially transitioning children, sometimes without parents’ knowledge, and are imposing them on others. Schools are losing sight of their mission to provide services and sports that protect everyone and respect their human rights.

Children are supported to be happy and confident in their bodies. Children are protected from being pressuring to regard setting boundaries as bigotry.

Schools are losing sight of their mission to provide services and sports that protect everyone and respect their human rights.

No child or teenager believes they need to modify their body to match their gender non-conformity. They believe they are “born in the wrong body”. They are misunderstanding and confusing the ordinary truth about the sexes.

It is easy and safe to say the truth: “Two sexes can be expressed in the UK. It forbids discrimination on the basis of sex, gender reassignment, belief and other protected characteristics, in education, employment and service provision. But it is often misunderstood, and sometimes misused.

People with beliefs about sex in law, policy and language in the UK. It forbids discrimination on the basis of sex, gender reassignment, belief and other protected characteristics, in education, employment and service provision. But it is often misunderstood, and sometimes misused.

Law and policy are clear about sex.

The ordinary truth about the sexes.

The Equality Act is the bedrock of protection against discrimination. The Equality Act makes a difference.

It has become dangerous to speak the truth: “Two sexes can be expressed in the UK. It forbids discrimination on the basis of sex, gender reassignment, belief and other protected characteristics, in education, employment and service provision. But it is often misunderstood, and sometimes misused.

It is easy and safe to say the truth: “Two sexes can be expressed in the UK. It forbids discrimination on the basis of sex, gender reassignment, belief and other protected characteristics, in education, employment and service provision. But it is often misunderstood, and sometimes misused.

Laws that relate to sex are unclear or misinterpreted.

Activists are trying to make laws and policies less clear and impose them on others. Organisations are losing sight of their mission to provide services and sports that protect everyone and respect their human rights.

Our 2022–25 Goals

WHY SUPPORT US?

WHAT PROBLEMS DO WE ADDRESS?

WHAT DO WE ADDRESS?

HOW DO WE DO IT?

INSIDE

INSIDE LOOK

We make things clear and simple.

We know the law and values in trying to appease the demands of gender ideology.

We are for women and men.

We are based on a human-rights framework.

We are professional and effective.

We inform public debate by undertaking research and analysis.

We shine a light on problems and make them much clearer.

We are calling on the EHRC to update its Statutory Codes of Practice to bring them in line with the law.

We have produced guidance for the women’s sector and for Wales and Scotland.

We have developed guidance for schools in England and in relation to organisations they can influence, and have produced guidance for the women’s sector and for Wales and Scotland.

Our guidance has influenced government policy, and we are working to support parents in challenging laws that promote gender ideology.

We are working to support parents in challenging laws that promote gender ideology.

We are calling on the EHRC to update its Statutory Codes of Practice to bring them in line with the law.

We have produced guidance for the women’s sector and for Wales and Scotland.

We have developed guidance for schools in England and in relation to organisations they can influence, and have produced guidance for the women’s sector and for Wales and Scotland.

Our guidance has influenced government policy, and we are working to support parents in challenging laws that promote gender ideology.

We are working to support parents in challenging laws that promote gender ideology.

We are calling on the EHRC to update its Statutory Codes of Practice to bring them in line with the law.

We have produced guidance for the women’s sector and for Wales and Scotland.

We have developed guidance for schools in England and in relation to organisations they can influence, and have produced guidance for the women’s sector and for Wales and Scotland.

Our guidance has influenced government policy, and we are working to support parents in challenging laws that promote gender ideology.

We are working to support parents in challenging laws that promote gender ideology.
Manchester University

Barrister
Chair
Naomi Cunningham

private in situations where no-one needs to know them.

same time, people have a right to keep their personal details

Many of the problems around sex and gender identity in society

Banning "gender identity" conversion therapy will make it harder

The Government has committed to developing legislation to ban through to employers, professional associations and trade unions.

discrimination and harassment at work. This message needs to get and Allison Bailey provided a precedent that people who express

Here are some other groups working on this issue:

We are part of a movement of resistance

Artist and writer
Writer and journalist
Milli Hill
Law reform specialist
Mental health expert
Marcus Evans

Jess De Wahls
Lawyer and politician
Brand strategist
Martin Carr

Simon Briscoe
Mental healthcare advocate

Our advisory group

Our board
Lydia Morris-Jones – Fundraising
Gemma Winborn-Peart – Marketing

Inspired進化

Conversion therapy
Gender-critical at work

Sex Matters is building an organisation to bring clarity back to conversations.

organisation. Receive a Sex Matters bag or mug to help kickstart for action.

Join our mailing list to receive news of our resources and ideas culture of "no debate" about sex and gender.

We will engage with the media and media regulators and paper records and it is essential to ensure clarity systems are taking over from analogue documents development of digital data standards. Digital identity recording sex in data systems and standards such as issue to highlight the risks of poor legislation.

We will continue to research and campaign on this evidence base.

conversion-therapy law and the government's flawed

We published detailed analysis of the campaign for the cases and about the law, produce further guidance and at work. We will write to employers about the recent

We have published guidance on gender-critical rights policies, focusing on key sectors such as the NHS.

campaign on public-sector employers' policies and engage with employers and investors.

Matters she had 20 years'

Before co-founding Sex protected characteristic of sexes are covered by the look at the

We published a rejoinder to an idea that

It analyses the

and

named as one of the books

Meets Reality

, which was tweeting and writing about tribunal test case on belief

claimant in an employment

the gender debate as the

CONVERSATIONS

Our senior leadership team

Dr Michael Biggs
Chartered Accountant
Treasurer

Associate Professor of

Manchester University

Professor of sociology
Alice Sullivan

City lawyer
Philosopher
Jon Pike

Artist and filmmaker
Gia Milinovich

Maggie Mellon
Monica Kurnatowska
Gerard Kelly

Youth worker and community arts activist
Coach, writer and former elite athlete

Co-founder of Sex Matters
Mental health expert

Our advisory group

Our board
Lydia Morris-Jones – Fundraising
Gemma Winborn-Peart – Marketing

 сможет ли мне помочь с чем-то еще?